Good morning, everyone!

My name is Li Hua. It's my great pleasure to talk about "core abilities" today. I think sports and life-long learning are the core abilities that we should have.

First of all, COVID-19 has taught us to pay more attention to our health. So, we should spend more time doing sports to keep healthy and improve our immunity. We students need to make a plan of exercising and do sports for at least twenty minutes every day.

Next, with the rapid development of science and technology, people must have the ability of life-long learning to meet the needs of their work and life. I think the best way of keeping life-long learning is to learn by yourself. You can learn from book, Internet or even radios. Only by doing this can we take on new challenges any time.

I hope that everyone can keep doing sports and keep learning to make yourself and your life better.

That's all for my speech. Thank you for your listening!
