Dear class,

Today, I'm going to talk about my hobby. Some people play sports and others build models, but my hobby is collecting stamps (邮票). I love stamps because they are very beautiful. They can also teach me a lot about different countries.

I have this hobby thanks to my grandpa. He is a stamp collector, and he has thousands of stamps. Some of them are valuable, so he always keeps them with great care. When grandpa wants to enjoy his stamps, he will even wear white gloves! I sometimes help him take old stamps from envelopes (信封) and postcards. He likes to tell me interesting stories about the different stamps. It is almost like a history lesson.

Let me show you a very wonderful stamp of the Great Wall. It is my favourite because it was my first one. My grandpa bought it for me. "They built it thousands of years ago, and they built it to keep the enemies (敌人) away," he told me. My grandpa also shared many other interesting stories about the Great Wall. Thanks to this stamp, I became interested in Chinese history, and I started to collect stamps. Now I have over a hundred of them, and I am learning more and more about countries around the world.

Thank you for listening! Any questions?

- () 53. Why did the writer start to love collecting stamps?
- A. Because it is his History homework,
B. Because his grandpa told him to do it.
C. Because he can learn a lot from stamps.
D. Because he is interested in Chinese buildings.
- () 54. What does the underlined word "valuable" mean in this passage (文章)?
- A. important. B. popular. C. colourful. D. helpful.
- () 55. Which can be the best title (标题) for this passage?
- A. Ways to Collect Stamps B. Stamps Have Stories to Tell
C. Good Points of Collecting Stamps D. My Grandpa — a Collector

C

The woman in the flat upstairs plays her piano midnight. The family across the street never cleans their garden. The rubbish blows into your garden. The person next door always parks his car in front of your driveway.

Have things like this ever happened to you? If so, you may ask yourself: "Who are these people? Why are they doing these things to me?"

These days, ▲ . Sometimes we share a friendly wave or say hello, but a lot of people don't even know their neighbor's names!

When you don't know someone, it's easy to build up frustration (挫折) and resentment (愤恨). You think, "Maybe they like to make me angry," or "Maybe they do it deliberately (故意地)." Believe it or not. Your neighbours probably don't mean to irritate (刺激) you.

Often they don't even know that they're bringing trouble to you.

So before you find some ways to solve the problem, you should talk about it with them first. When you meet your neighbours, you should talk to them in a friendly way. Say something good about their children or do something else to make them feel good. And if you can think of an easy way to help them, say it.

If talking doesn't work, ask another person to help. This person can listen to both sides of the story and help you and your neighbour solve the situation. In a word, sometimes it's a good idea to avoid (避免) the problem.

- () 56. The writer begins the passage by _____.
 A. asking questions B. telling stories
 C. giving examples (例子) D. comparing (比较) things.
- () 57. Which of the following sentence is best for _____ in Para 3?
 A. many people know their neighbours well
 B. many people don't know their neighbours
 C. many people like talking with their neighbours
 D. many people have trouble with their neighbours
- () 58. Which paragraphs tell us the way to solve (解决) the problem?
 A. Para 4&5 B. Para 6&7 C. Para 3,4&5 D. Para 4, 5&6

D

The next day was also cold and grey. Nobody talked much during the breakfast. Mrs March was tired. The girls tried not to be sad.

The carriage (马车) got to the house and it was time for Mrs March to leave. She kissed (亲吻) her daughters one by one and said, "My dears, keep busy and never lose hope!"

"Yes, mother."

"Meg, look after your sisters. If you need help, ask Hannah and Mr Laurence. Jo, be careful and happy, and write to me often. Beth and Amy, help with the housework and follow your sister's advice."

"Yes, mother! We will!"

She got into the carriage and opened the window and said, "Goodbye, my dears!"

The girls waved (挥动) their hands happily until the carriage went away. With the sad faces and heavy hearts, they went back inside.

"The house is empty now," said Meg.

"I'm going to see Aunt March. What about you, Meg?" said Jo brightly. She was trying not to think about her sad feeling.

"I'm going to teach the King children," said Meg.

"And Amy and I plan to help Hannah with the housework," said Beth.

"I think anxiety (焦虑) is very interesting," Amy said. Her words made her sisters laugh, and they all started to feel better.

_____. For a week, the girls kept to mother's words and worked hard. Their life became busy but happy.

Then Jo got a bad cold, and had to stay at home. She didn't care about this because she didn't like going to Aunt March's home. She was happy to lie on the sofa all day with her books. Amy was tired of the housework so she started painting again. Meg went to teach the King children every day. She spent her free time writing long letters to her mother and reading letters from Mr Brooke. Only Beth kept looking after the house. She did her work and her sister's work, too. She was never unhappy with that. And every day she took some food to the Hummel family.

- () 59. When mother went away, why did the girls wave their hands happily?
 A. Because they really felt happy at that moment.
 B. Because they didn't want to make their mother sad.

 (本大题共 5 分, 每小题 1 分)。

Mrs. Hands taught Jill and her sister Gina to care for others. This gave them a great idea. "Let's set up a new club at school called 'The Care Club'!" Gina said. Jill thought it was a wonderful idea. Every night they planned what they would do the next day.

One day they helped a little girl at their school learn to read. At the weekend they helped walk a neighbor's dog and even gave the dog a good bath. They loved helping others and they were having so much fun doing it as well.

After a few days, the other students at school hoped to join the club. So Gina and Jill opened the club up to new members. Everyone in the club had to promise (承诺) to show love to others. They had a meeting every week. They planned who they would help and why they would do it. Everyone gave away some money each week to buy flowers or cards for sick people in hospitals to cheer them up (使……振作). In a short time, everyone at school heard of the club and almost everyone wanted to join it.
